HOW I GOT THE GOAT

I used to attend the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo back in the mid '60s. My daddy and mama had a little place in Egypt, Texas, right outside of Glen Flora. Daddy was the foreman at the Spade Ranch, running cattle and planting rice, but, once a year, he would load up the whole fam-damily and head to Houston for the Rodeo. He would set up a booth selling last minute insurance policies to the bronc and bull riders in the Rodeo. You couldn't hardly sell insurance to a barrel rider and the clowns already had it. My mama would cook bar-b-que and sell it in the Astrohall, and Nana, my grandmother, would pick up a gig or two dancing downtown at a club (she was a stunner).

That left me with a lot of free time to become the 'agent provocateur' of the livestock pens behind the rodeo. To pick up some extra dough I would pitch nickels with the truant boys, but I truly made decent hay fixing the kids goat roping competition, which ran at Rodeo halftime. I would first hustle a Busch Bavarian from Nana's cooler. Then, I'd circle to the goat pen and pick out a big blue Billy goat to nurse that warm beer like it was milk through a rubber calf nipple. Then, I'd run around to the front and take bets from the other kids on which goat would get roped first. The gun would fire, the gate would fly open, and sure as hell my drunk blue Billy goat could barely stagger out from in front of that herd of young'uns slinging their lassos and yelling like a house a-fire. Sometimes I would even compete against the little turds. I could quite honestly clear $25 a day hoodwinking those local yokel 4H'ers. They never figured out how that skinny kid from Egypt could lasso and hogtie the first rodeo goat, every time.
